Nov 27, 2017 So, I found the library or something like that and I'm trying to use it in my iOS app. I added this folder to the project, added the framework, made sure the project is using the framework, and added a reference to the framework, but now when I try to get the absolute path from the file path like this: NSString *myRootPath = [[NSBundle mainBundle] bundlePath]; NSString *filePath = [[myRootPath stringByAppendingPathComponent:@"root.txt"] stringByAppendingPathComponent:@"base.txt"]; NSString *theFile = [filePath stringByAppendingPathComponent:@"File.txt"]; the string theFile is nil. The root.txt and file.txt are there and I set this as the directory where I get the files from, so why isn't the file found? A: If you already have the absolute path, then there's no need for me to tell you how to get it. Instead, why don't you just give the path? Like this: NSString *theFile = [NSString stringWithContentsOfFile:@"/var/mobile/Library/Preferences/test.txt"]; Maybe you should try first NSBundle's class cache of the framework/dynamically loaded framework/dylib. CHOCOLATE WALNUT MOUSSE Photo: Ariane Daguin I can't seem to get enough of this rich, fudgy, rich chocolate mousse. Having spent the past 4 years traveling the world, I've had ample opportunity to eat the most unbelievably delicious chocolates, and this chocolate mousse is my current favorite. It's rich, fudgy, rich, sweet, creamy, rich... (you get the idea), and I enjoy it so much that I'm pretty sure I'm going to have to re-create it in my kitchen soon. Although I'm new to this blog, I'm very excited to be writing here for USANA. I♦
