Abdul Rahman al-Sudais Abdul Rahman al-Sudais (born February 7, 1940), or Dr. Sheikh Abdul Rahman Al-Sudais, is a famous Egyptian Sufi cleric and Islamic preacher. He is the founder of the Murshidgami-Sunni Sufi Order and the Murshid-e-Deen. He is the founder of The Murshidgami Sunn. Abdul Rahman al-Sudais is one of the most famous figures of the Egyptian Islamic revival and belongs to the Sufi tradition and was dubbed "the Murshid-e-Deen of Sufism" by famed scholar and author Suheil Bushrui. The Murshidgami Sunn derives from the zikr or remembrance of the Prophet Muhammad by its founder, al-Sudais (generally translated as "Sudais"). He is regarded as the third most holy figure of the Shadhili Sufi order. Al-Sudais was also regarded as a Sayyid by his followers. The Murshidgami Sunn currently has an estimated 30,000 followers, which is more than the estimated 12,000 followers of the Murshid-e-Deen, the head of the Qadiriyya Sufi Order. The Murshidgami Sunn is one of the largest Sufi organizations in the world. The order has a branch in the United States, the Murshidgami Sunn USA, founded by Al-Sudais' nephew, the Murshid-e-Deen, Dr. Mohamed Abdul Rahman Al-Sudais. Al-Sudais has been described as one of the most influential Sufi preachers of all time. In the latter half of the 20th century, Abdul Rahman Al-Sudais has been known as the Master of the Messenger. He teaches that belief in the Prophet Muhammad is the highest form of spirituality and every act of worship towards the Prophet Muhammad is rewarded in the hereafter. In his teachings, he claims to have special knowledge of the Prophet Muhammad and to be the physical incarnation of the Prophet Muhammad. Abdul Rahman Al-Sudais is married to Umm-Hakim bint Abdul Rahman Al-Shushruti and has seven children with her: "Aqeel Al-Sudais, Abdur-Rahman Al 2d92ce491b
