U.S. Pat. No. 4,428,578 discloses a hand-held can opener comprising a plate which is moved by actuation of a trigger to grasp a can top and to pull it downwardly from a can. The can top is grasped by a gripping edge and is pulled downwardly by movement of the gripping edge, which is effected by a handle portion and a thumb ring. A problem with this construction is that there is no positively located stop means to prevent the grasping edge of the plate from descending too far, which could result in the grasping edge being pulled off the top of the can or the can top being passed by the grasping edge. Also, when the top is pulled, it is lifted to an extent that its cylindrical sides interfere with downward movement of the gripping edge. Can openers of the type in which the can top is clamped and lifted are known. U.S. Pat. No. 4,012,844 discloses a solution to the problem of preventing the grasping edge from descending too far.Washington (CNN) -- The Federal Bureau of Investigation is looking into the sexual assaults of children, according to officials briefed by the Justice Department on Thursday, in a new awareness program directed at law enforcement and the public. More than 80 percent of the cases involved victims ages 13 or younger. All of the cases were reported to the FBI, most of them to the military police, the survey
