I am trying to use the Modulo operator to set a counter to zero. However, I get a weird error. This does not work: for (int i = 1; i Q: Why is the constructor called more than once I am making a program with a class named "Solution". Each user of the class has one solution instance, and a thread which executes this instance. If I want two Solution instances to run simultaneously and both have the same solution, what can I do? My first solution was to store the
