Kulakov" MONIAGnauchn. hands MD, professor, r. f. sciences, prof. PokladÂ®I. E. Scientific secretary of the State Budgetary Scientific and Civil Aviation Center of the AGP Published: Branch VAGNTS IAGN Center APROMAT RUSSIA, publ. 1998, pp. 116-116 Introduction In recent years, in recent years, there has been a large number of medical publications devoted to the problem of protecting women's health, and the importance of preventing maternal and child health has increased. Particularly much attention is paid to perinatal and perinatal pathology, since, according to many experts, it is these pathologies that underlie most neonatological diseases (early death, prematurity, congenital anomalies, infertility). In the last few decades, after the creation of the pre-krill method of intrauterine development of the fetus (I trimester) - HLA typing - it has become obvious and understandable that there are risk groups for as many as twelve indicators of the unfavorable course of pregnancy, with which these pathological conditions of the fetus are associated. Effective diagnostics is necessary to eliminate these risk factors and timely provision of specialized medical care to a woman. The way to provide specialized medical care is to protect the health of the mother, as well as the newborn and infant. The HLA method can be successfully applied in the population. So far, it has been shown to not only diagnose, but also prevent. and a public figure dedicated to reproductive health issues. It informs about what are the three factors - sexual, psychological and physical - responsible for the violation of the reproductive function and their relationship.rnrnBook...
