Bitcoin (BTC) and cryptocurrency markets saw a slight recovery on Feb. 5, as a Bloomberg report regarding Facebook's plans to integrate blockchain technology into WhatsApp was met with some skepticism. As reported, the social media giant's CTO, Mike Schroepfer, revealed during a recent blockchain conference in Toronto that they are in the process of overhauling their app to bring Bitcoin (BTC) payments directly into WhatsApp, with more than 2 billion monthly active users. Schroepfer said that the future WhatsApp could possibly have its own digital currency or tokens — Crypto Briefing reported in January. At press time, Bitcoin is up 0.04 percent on the day, trading at $8,834 per coin — its highest level since Jan. 29, as BTC struggles to hold losses below $8,000. Analyst: Facebook 'The Way We Pay For Things' Is Ripple (XRP) Ethereum Classic (ETC) is down 0.11 percent over the last 24 hours, trading at $13.88 as of press time. Meanwhile, XRP is up 3.78 percent over the past 24 hours and is trading at $0.368, marking its highest level since Jan. 29, according to CoinMarketCap. In an interview with Cointelegraph, BitMEX Research Director Rafael Oloix noted that a $1-billion Daily Volume for Facebook's WhatsApp could be possible, given its massive user base. "If Facebook's WhatsApp can get that kind of daily volume — which I think that's why they're doing it now — that could be a very good opportunity. I don't think they would allow it, but who knows?" Oloix added. While Facebook's plans are far from official, the analyst claimed that Ripple's XRP token was the most likely candidate to be integrated, given that Facebook already has a partnership with Ripple. "That's why I think XRP is the best. The relationship between Facebook and Ripple is pretty long and they did Ripple x Facebook. If I was a Facebook investor I would invest in Ripple, I would invest in XRP." Nonetheless, Oloix noted that Facebook can't guarantee that their users will adopt such crypto payments. "You could adopt XRP, but you can"

1. Technical Field The present invention relates to a heating device. 2. Related Art A known heating device with a heat exchanger is one that includes a heat exchanger having a refrigerant circuit for circulating a refrigerant, a heating resistance unit arranged in the heat exchanger, a heating part (heater) provided in a housing for setting the heat exchanger at a desired temperature by supplying electric power to the heating resistance unit, and a fan that is arranged inside the housing and causes air to flow in the housing (refer to Japanese Unexamined Patent Application Publication No. 2010-235907). The heating part is a means for transmitting a heat generated by the heating resistance unit to air, the heat being radiated from the heating resistance unit. The heating resistance unit is a device having a heat generator for generating heat and a heating circuit for causing the heat to be transferred to the air and generating heat. The heat generating element is a PTC element or the like that is connected to the heating circuit. The fan is a means for promoting heat transfer from the heating part to the air. The fan has a plurality of blades, and the blades are rotated to spread air in the heat exchanger. In a heating device described in Japanese Unexamined Patent Application Publication No. 2010-235907, the heat generating element is arranged on an inner wall surface of the heat exchanger. In a heating device described in Japanese Unexamined Patent Application Publication No. 2010-235907, the heat generating element is arranged in the heat exchanger. Thus, if the heat generating element is broken in use, the breakage is likely to occur in the heat exchanger.Q: sql server not inserting before update triggers I have a table with 2 columns. one is varchar(100) and the other is a timestamp I want to check that the value of the timestamp is before or after a certain time, and if so, then insert a record to another table.
